COLLEGE AT BOSTON

Dedication

*With all our love
we dedicate this book to our parents
in gratitude for their help
and their guidance*

J. Barnett

To the Members of the Class of 1958:

To each of you I extend my personal congratulations and good wishes. You have now completed your formal college education and your preparation for the teaching profession. Upon each of you your Alma Mater has placed her seal of approval and her prediction of your success as classroom teachers.

You are about to assume a great responsibility to our free American society, to parents, and to the children who will be placed in your charge. In the moulding of the characters of these young people you will have tremendous influence. The preservation and continuance of the American freedoms are to a very great extent dependent upon you as teachers. The proper and effective moral guidance needed and desired by our younger generation will be within your control.

I urge you to realize and appreciate the seriousness of the responsibility which you are about to undertake. My faith in you assures me that you will prove yourselves worthy of this great trust and that the next generation of citizens will be a true reflection of your own excellent character.

May God grant you every measure of success and happiness in your profession and in your lives.

In Memoriam

DR. REGINA D. MADDEN

Professor of English

1948 - 1958

(Died January 22, 1958)

*"Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control,
These three alone lead life to sovereign power."*

Alfred Tennyson

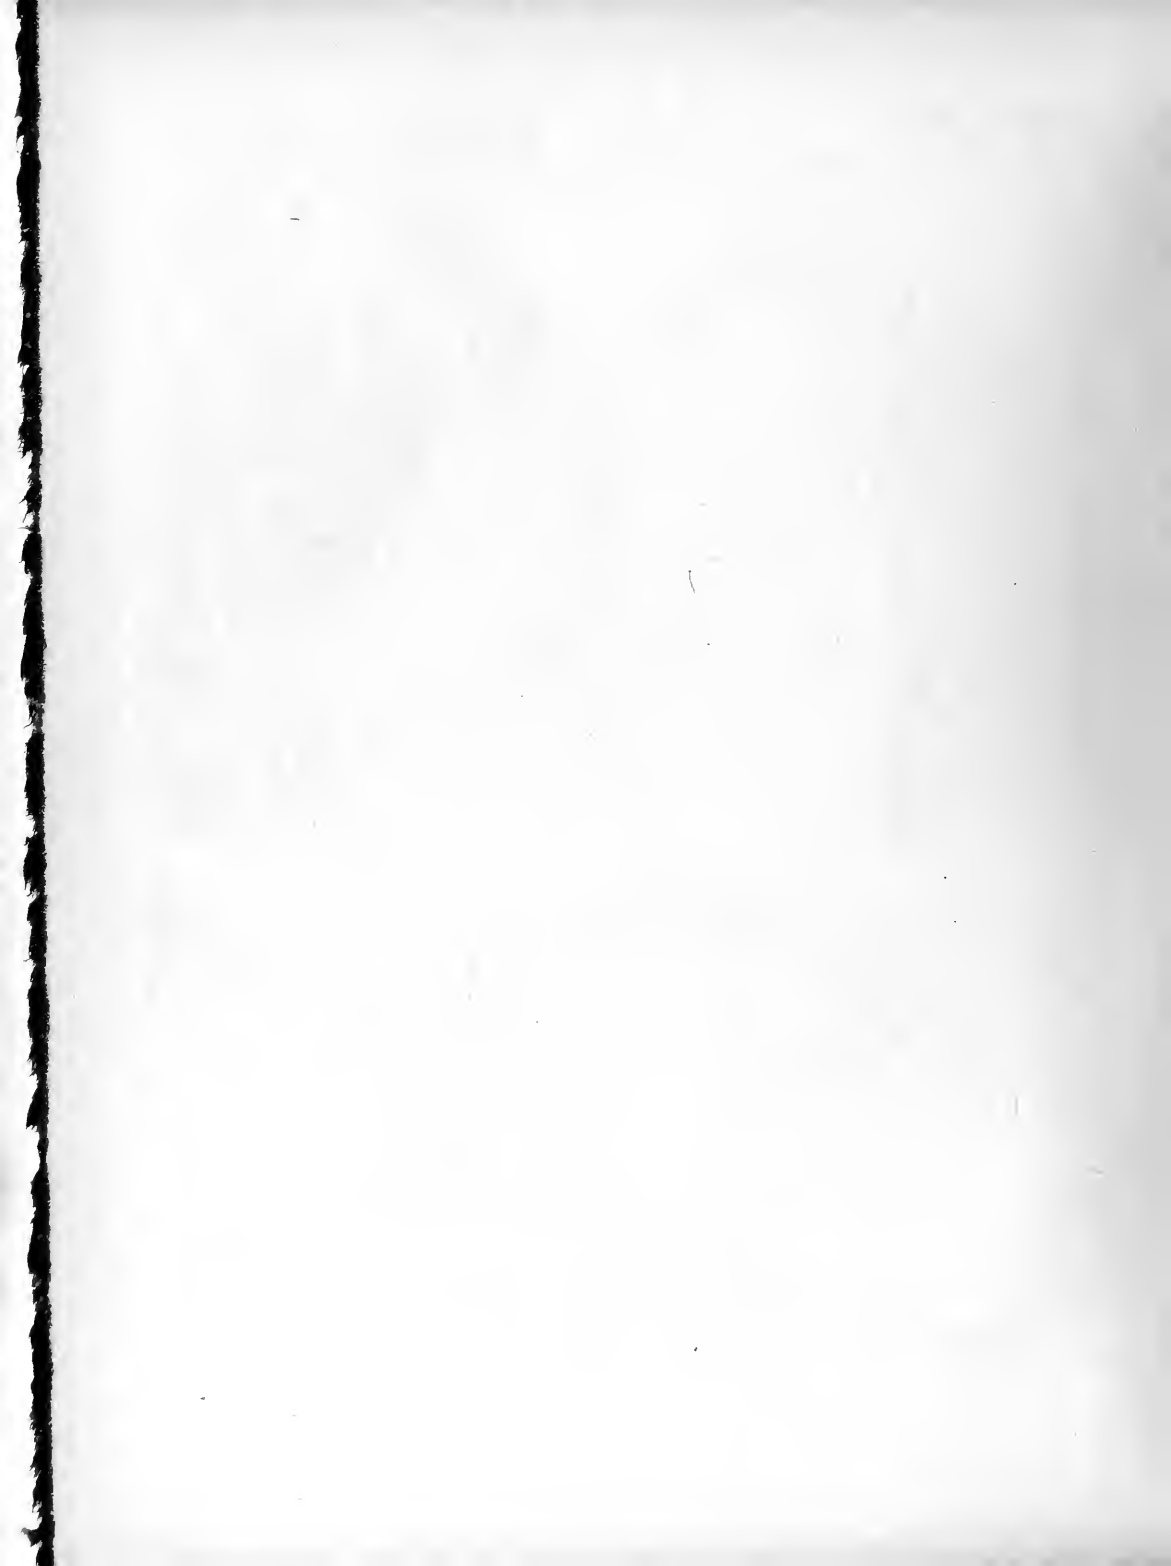

When God called Dr. Regina Madden to Him, we lost a brilliant scholar, and a devoted teacher, and a gracious lady. Her radiant presence will long be remembered in the halls of the Boston Teachers College.

She loved life and lived it to the fullest. An erudite perfectionist, she gave her best to her students, exacting from them a high standard of achievement and imbuing in them a desire to emulate her scholarship.

One to revere, to respect, one in all ways kind, in all ways thoughtful, in all ways a gentle woman.

The members of the Senior Class of 1958 of the State Teachers College at Boston are sincerely grateful to our president and faculty for the guidance and instruction given to us during our four years of academic training in preparation for the teaching profession. Such preparation will enable us to perform our future professional duties with efficiency and confidence. We shall strive to give evidence of gratitude to our College by sincere efforts to uphold its standards of scholarship and to foster in others its ideals.

Club Activities

School isn't just a grind; it isn't just study, classes and more study. There are provided by the college, opportunities for every student to enrich his life, not only scholastically but also socially, culturally, and spiritually.

One of the chief opportunities is that offered for experience in self-government. The S.G.A. is the association run by and for the students. The executive board is composed of a president and first vice president selected from the senior class, a second vice president and secretary from the junior class, and a treasurer from the sophomore class. S.G.A. meets on Friday afternoon in open session to discuss and plan the various college activities. Among the activities directly sponsored by S.G.A. are the all-college dinner, open house, and the always popular winter formal.

For those appreciative of the fine arts, the college provides such clubs as the Music, Drama, Literary, and Art Clubs. The Music Club is one of the most active and certainly most talented groups on campus. Under the direction of Miss Elizabeth A.

O'Brien the club performs at the various special assemblies, at class functions, and even at state gatherings. The club embraces about one hundred members all of whom consider themselves richer for the experience. The Drama Club under the guidance of Dr. Collins and Mr. Gormley produces all our college plays. Aspiring young actors and actresses are given a chance to prove their dramatic worth through the channels of this club. Its biggest production is the junior play. Room 202 is the setting for the literary minded of the college. Bi-monthly discussions include such topics as children's literature and the contemporary theatre. The meetings are concluded with the serving of tempting delicacies which may account in some measure for the popularity the club enjoys.

The Art Club enables those students interested in developing their artistic ability to dabble in the arts of ceramics, jewelry making, and painting. Perhaps this club's most outstanding contribution to college life is the annual Christmas exhibit made in the workshops.

Our club activities help us to be aware of other countries and life abroad. A foreign flavor is given the college by the French and Spanish Clubs. Its members are given the opportunity to converse in their favorite language and to enrich further their knowledge of their European counterparts through films, lectures, and discussions. Furthermore, the affairs of other countries as well as of our own are discussed and clarified at World Affairs Club meetings. Under the guidance of Dr. Dunlea this club strives to make tomorrow's teachers better informed, social individuals.

Sports Illustrated might do well to look into T.C.'s more promising young athletes. Both the women and the men at the college have athletic associations. The W.R.A. meets after class hours on Tuesday and Thursday to participate in such sports as basketball, softball, badminton, and just recently fencing and golf. Playdays and intramural activities are organized through the efforts of the Misses Corcoran, Farrell, DeAngelis, and Cummings and enjoy an always increasing popularity. The M.A.A. carries on an extensive program. Our stalwart young men protect the honor and name of the institution by participating in intramural and intercollegiate baseball and basketball under the guidance of Mr. James Sullivan. Existing apart is the bowling club whose favorite call is strike—favorite alleys—the Huntington, and favorite social event—the annual spring banquet.

Some of the newer additions to the club list include the Camera Club, initiated in 1956, the Psi Chi Club and the Veterans' Club. The newest techniques and equipment in photography as well as plans for field trips and contests are discussed at the Thursday meetings of the Camera Club. The Psi Chi Club strives to enrich the psychological background of its members. The Vets Club, formed to meet the needs of our ever increasing number of veterans, has become a vital social organ on campus.

Chalkdust, our official college newspaper, is an essential channel of communication to the student body. Through it the who's, what's, when's, and where's of college life are kept current in everyone's minds while the editorials pinpoint the needs and reflect the attitudes and viewpoints of the students.

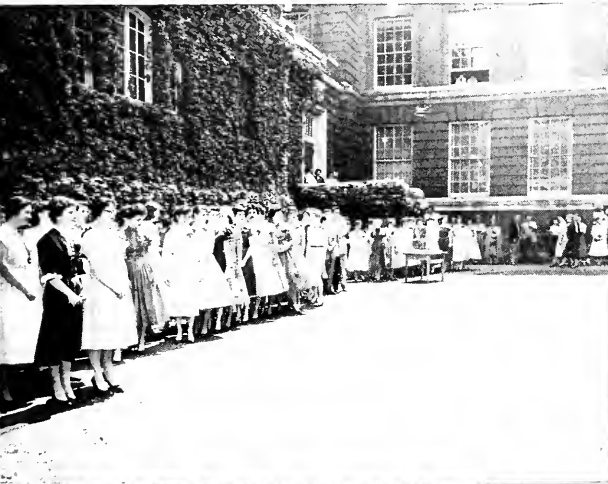

Our activities do not, however, limit themselves to mere physical or even intellectual needs. Our students are deeply concerned with the welfare of others and with their own spiritual growth. The Social Service Club donates time and money to help those less fortunate than themselves. They particularly interest themselves in underprivileged and handicapped children. The spiritual needs of the students are met through the various denominational clubs. Hillel, Newman, Orthodox clubs, and the Protestant Fellowship meet weekly to enrich the religious background of their members through discussions, lectures, and films.

OFFICERS OF W.R.A.

President

Rose Turco

Vice President

Mary Sullivan

Secretary-Treasurer

Marie Julia Guilfoyle

All hail the Women's Recreational Association! In the past four years we have seen this club grow in membership, in activities, and in spirit. Here is found an unbeatable combination of sports and intercollegiate activities that fulfills the diversified interests of the women students. The pride and joy of the W.R.A. is the exceptionally grand record of the girls' basketball team that in the past three years has not lost a game. There is an activity for every season, starting with volleyball, soccer, and fencing in the fall; basketball, and basketball officiating in the winter; and badminton and softball in the spring. Playdays, conventions, and intercollegiate games give the girls the opportunity for socializing and exchanging ideas with students from other colleges.

Long live the W.R.A. — the club that gives us the opportunity to fill our leisure time with worthwhile participation all year round.

Men's Athletic Association

For the past four years, under the guidance of Mr. Gus Sullivan, the athletic teams of Boston Teachers College have been spearheaded by a nucleus of three men, now members of the senior class. On the basketball court Bill McBride, Jack Howlett, and Bob Currier, who have been the standouts of the team, have made the major contributions to the team's successes. In our Junior year, Jack Howlett, who was elected captain of the basketball squad, was a defensive standout and one of the leading scorers on the club. Bill McBride was elected captain of the team in our senior year and proved to be an able leader. Bill demonstrated his shooting prowess with a foul shot percentage of .874 in his senior year. Bob Currier was the leading playmaker for the first three seasons, but due to an unfortunate injury, had to turn in his uniform for an assistant coaching position in the senior year.

The baseball team has had an excellent record with such stalwarts as McBride, Howlett, and Currier, with the added assistance of Paul Collins, Ed Goan, and Bob McDonough. Currier and Howlett spark-plugged the team with their dazzling double-play combination. Bill McBride donned the tools of ignorance with the ability of Yogi Berra and was the field general in tight situations. Ed Goan was the glove man of the infield and shone defensively. Paul Collins will be remembered for his Ballantine blasts off the left field barrier. The hot corner was guarded by Bob McDonough who told us he wished that someone would buy him a basket to insure his defensive play.

Class Essay

The great Roman, Julius Caesar, once uttered these immortal words: "Veni, vidi, vici"—I came, I saw, I conquered. We came, not too long ago to Teachers College with rather mixed emotions and attitudes. Those who just came and saw, well, they did not persevere. Those of us who came, saw, and conquered are here today to reap the profits of a conquest—a conquest not only pertaining to education but also to our very selves.

We came for rather varied reasons: some, and there were those few, were truly dedicated to the ideal of teaching. Some came here because the school offered a remarkable education at low tuition fees. Others came because they thought teaching was an undemanding profession. Still, a very small minority considered teaching a stepping stone to greater aspirations. Many of our conceptions of teaching differed, but here we were, the class of '58, united in a single goal.

What did we see? Many of our classmates saw that teaching was not agreeable to them. They left. The remaining candidates saw teaching in a new and brighter light. Teaching, all of a sudden, ceased to become just an easy job; there were lesson plans, curriculum guides, cumulative records, IQ tests, achievement tests, P.T.A. meetings, individual differences, meaningful experiences, units, basal systems, teaching methods and many other facets of this profession which, hitherto, had been to us a closed book. We discovered that teachers, yes, even our own instructors, are people—ordinary human people. They were not created to complicate or confuse our lives and minds. Our instructors are here to aid us in becoming members of our chosen profession. No longer were we in awe of them; rather, we respected them for their persistence, their guidance, and their courage. As student teachers, we saw how children look up to their teachers (and even to us). They saw in us, although they could not have explained their attitude in such terms, representatives of an old and honored calling. We have tried to justify this kind of respect.

Although we have had a single goal, we have remained individuals, we have all gone about our task in different ways. We have acquired some knowledge of the art of teaching, and we have grown up as human beings. We have realized the importance of being reliable, conscientious, and responsible adults. We as teachers have certain standards toward which we must plot our course of life. Therefore, we have discarded our immature attitudes and we have recognized our problems and our obligations not only to ourselves but also to our colleagues and pupils. As we have tried to cast aside our weaker and less desirable qualities, we have gained in self-assurance, understanding, humility, and knowledge.

Let us look to the future as a challenge for further triumphs. Let us say with Tennyson's Ulysses that we shall be

". . . strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

LOUISE JALALIAN

Class Poem

Four fleeting years,
Soon to become a memory
Of things so dear to you and me.

A memory everlasting
Of friendship valued
And helpfulness and school spirit.

We now set out
To take our place in life;
The world is waiting before us.

As we leave here,
We are filled with
Many deep and mingled emotions.

A thankfulness
For knowledge gained
And the light of understanding.

An excitement
Which hastens our steps
Forward and on to tomorrow.

Two distinct feelings,
Pride in our wisdom
And humility before the unknown.

Dear Alma Mater,
We will not forsake you;
Our thoughts shall c'er return.

You have given us your torch,
We give you our hearts
And the promise for the future.

Diane Rabinowitz

Class Song

It seems our journey's over now;
Our task, it seems, is done;
But as we leave these ivy walls
Our work has just begun.

To "Educate For Service,"
Our goal for these four years,
Commences on this college day
With sadness, joy, and tears.

For now the future beckons us
To service for mankind.
O God, for guidance we do ask;
Help us our path to find.

O Walls, resound this day with us;
We leave not only you,
But to our classmates, teachers—all
We bid a sad adieu.

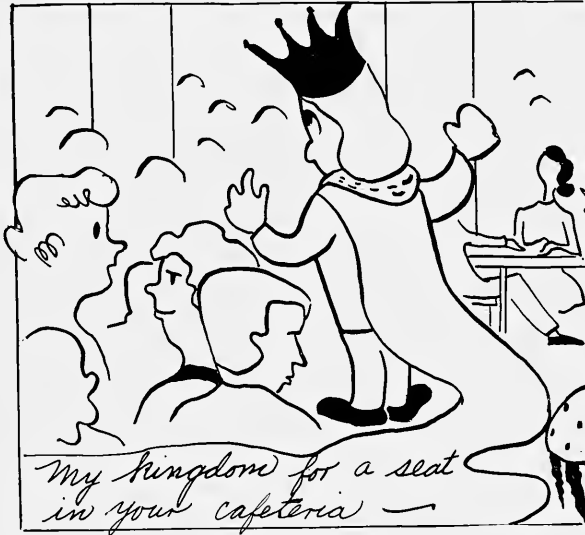

May we inculcate in our lives
The meaning of our seal:
The shield of strength, the torch of truth,
The star, the bow of zeal.

The arrow, wisdom pointed, gleams
Against the golden rays
Of yonder broad horizon
Good bye, dear college days.

Class History

Case Number 625

The Case of the Missing High School Seniors

Duration of case . . . Four years

September 1954

Traced the seniors to 625 Huntington Avenue.

Armed with money orders and checks, the suspects waited in alphabetical lines.

Shortly after they emerged empty-handed.

Later followed suspects, headed by suspicious looking characters, casing the building.

October 1954

"The day is cold and dark and dreary . . ."

Suspects donned odd disguises.

They wore nightgowns, curlers, and nightcaps.

Suspects carried candleabra . . .

Attempt to look like Liberace failed.

Heard some suspicious singing and investigated.

Decoded it read: "When we came Alma Mater to thee in our youth" etc.

November 1954

Followed suspects in formal attire to Club 625 for a "Night of Tropical Splendor."

November 1954 to June 1955

Lost suspects in a maze of classes and studies.

September 1955

Discovered suspects were back at number 625 with cash in hand.

October 1955

Suspects met Beowulf and Grendel with mixed feelings.

November 1955

Peculiar looking characters disguised as Mouseketeers were discovered.

January 1956

Traced suspects to a theater of operation—The Y.W.C.A.

Waited outside building for sixty minutes.

Suspects emerged with a dripping look.

March 1956

Smelled a pungent odor.

Observed suspects armed with scalpels.

May 1956

Suspects engaged in writing questionable reports to their superiors.

October 1956

Detected suspects at number 625.

Noted change of attitude.

Observed a quaking group of lowly beings following suspects about.

November 1956
Pursued suspects to number 625 for a Fantastic Fall.

December 1956
Observed suspects paper-mache-ing questionable looking objects.

December 1956 to May 1957
Watched suspects going in and out of a multitude of rooms.
Discovered the passwords—"Meaningful" and "Intergrated."

May 1957
Suspects engaged in a whirl of social activities.
Noted a suspicious change of appearance.
Bright-eyed beings were transformed into sleepy characters.

September 1957 to January 1958
Half of suspects missing Tuesday through Friday of every week.
Must investigate.
Suspects scattered throughout the city.
Impossible to follow.

October 1957
Suspects gathered together at Club 625 for a huge Kick-off Caper.

December 1957
Suspects congregated at number 625.
"Strange things are happening!"
Some suspects engaged in buying, others in selling.
Suspect formation of syndicate—but what kind?
Must investigate further.

January 1958
Finally traced all missing suspects to number 625.
What happened to those that remained?
Must investigate.

January 1958 to May 1958
Suspects engaged in mysterious interviews.

June 1958
Followed suspects through a week of picnics and parties.
Suspects donned formal dress for a gala prom.
Observed suspects in the courtyard in cap and gown.
Saw suspects receive suspicious looking documents.
Investigated.
Discovered the documents were college degrees.

Conclusion of case:
It is the belief of this detective that the missing high school seniors are still missing. In fact, they are completely gone. In their place, I find a group of well-poised, well-versed, and educated young men and young women ready to take their place in the world of today and tomorrow.
